

U.S. Army Combined Arms Center
and Fort Leavenworth

Colonel Daniel S. Roper

Director, U.S. Army and Marine Corps
Counterinsurgency Center

U. S. Army Colonel Daniel S. Roper is Director of the U.S. Army and Marine Corps Counterinsurgency Center at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. The Center capabilities through research of best practices, improvement of doctrine, training and education, and through collaboration with interagency and international partners. Colonel Roper recently returned from a four-month mission conducting a comprehensive assessment of counterinsurgency in Iraq.

He is a 1982 graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point and holds a Masters of Science in Nuclear Physics from the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, California. He also holds two Masters of Military Art and Science from the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas and is a graduate of the Advanced Operational Arts Studies War College Fellowship program.

During his 26-year military career, Col. Roper has held a variety of command and staff positions in the United States and overseas and served on both the Army and Joint Staffs in the Pentagon. He has commanded at the battery, battalion, and brigade levels and served as an instructor in the School of Advanced Military Studies. He was Chief of Operations and Intelligence for the Coalition Forces Land Component Command Deep Operations Cell in Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Colonel Roper has been published in a number of professional journals. Among his awards and decorations are the Defense Superior Service Medal, Defense Meritorious Service Medal, Meritorious Service Medal, and Airborne and Air Assault Badges. Both Colonel Roper's sons also are serving in the U.S. Army.